Even in difficult times, AAB College's noble goals of quality, leadership and success remain unshaken

Bujar
Demjaha
Rector

Higher education in Kosovo and abroad has historically faced many challenges, but 2020 in particular will be remembered as a very difficult year. During this year, in our country, over 50 thousand citizens were infected with Covid-19, of which, 1,300 ended in fatality. Despite the difficult conditions, AAB College continued to adhere to its mission by offering quality higher education and science programs. AAB College did not stop contributing to the advancement, creation and dissemination of knowledge through scientific research in order to improve the well-being and health of the people, while also helping with the cultural, social and economic development in Kosovo, the region and beyond. International and local conferences, and open lectures with diplomats from many missions located in Kosovo were organized. Even in these difficult conditions, in spite of the isolation, many cooperation agreements were signed with local and international universities and institutions. AAB College, as an institution that already favors digitalization, during 2020 saw the opportunity to take it to the next level.

After the announcement of the Covid-19 pandemic safety measures by our government, AAB College was amongst the first institutions to switch to distance learning. This new way of learning was made possible by the valuable team of the software development department of AAB College in collaboration with our students and academic staff.

2020 will be remembered as the year of COVID-19 and Joe Biden's victory over Donald Trump, but AAB College will also remember it as a victory over the "invisible enemy".

Successful people distinguish themselves in difficult times!

MESSAGE FROM AAB COLLEGE RECTOR

22 March 2020

Dear students,

We are in an unusual situation, which reminds my generation of homeschooling in the nineties, the only difference being the source of danger. In those days, the danger was known from where it came from and it was seen who it was, and now it is invisible but equally deadly. This time the enemy is the devastating COVID-19 virus, however we do not fight this battle alone, we are in this together with all the world.

Under these circumstances, AAB College was immediately mobilized and almost seamlessly managed to transfer learning from campus to its online platform, in which you already have access to. Our IT staff, with professionalism and creativity, managed to further advance the distance learning platform with the addition of visual communication (video). Implementation of distance lectures is almost 100%, with student attendance exceeding all expectations. Both the management team of AAB College and I congratulate you on your commitment and dedication. I take this opportunity to invite other students who for some reason have not been able to join the online lecture platform so far. Please do not risk your academic year and do not miss the opportunity to make your valuable contribution through online studies.

AAB COLLEGE MARKS THE INTERNATIONAL DAY OF BOOK AND COPYRIGHT

23 April 2020

On the occasion of April 23, International Book and Copyright Day, AAB College, although in unusual circumstances, marked this day through a live broadcast with students. In this online discussion, the professors and writers: Mr. Rahman Paçarizi and Mrs. Ilire Zajmi-Rugova, as well as the Director of the Library of AAB College, Mr. Urim Sallauka took part.

They talked about the importance of the book and the awareness of good time management using books especially in this period of isolation. Another important issue that was discussed was the respect for copyright in Kosovo.

“We find lost freedom in books, we live there and coexist with the characters and the stories we read, so I remember it’s an ideal situation for us to retreat into ourselves, reading books. Another issue has to do with copyright, which is not respected, not appreciated in our country, and it should be noted that most of those who publish books, publish books because they love the book, because they live by writing and I do not know of any author in Kosovo that has done this for financial benefits”, said Mrs. Ilire Zajmi-Rugova.

Whereas, Mr. Paçarizi spoke more about book management and the non-penetration of Albanian authors abroad.

“The book, like everything else, must be managed, that is, a book when it is published must have a follow-up infrastructure, and that infrastructure primarily consists of the media, which must promote the book. Another management is the existence of a genuine and systematic literary critique, which would guide the reader on what to read about when it comes to a particular book. As far as Kosovo is concerned, books in our country circulate within a closed circle, very few books penetrate abroad except those that have arrived to be translated or have been published directly in other languages “, said Mr. Paçarizi.

Also, during this discussion, the Director of the Library of AAB College, Mr. Urim Sallauka announced the winners of the “Masar Stavileci” Award for the most devoted readers of the library. He said that the students of AAB College are avid readers and use a good part of their time in the library.

It is worth noting that the AAB College Electronic Library is also providing access to international literature and journals even during the isolation period so that students have access to these materials at all times.

VJOSA OSMANI: “CITIZENS HAVE LOST FAITH IN THE ASSEMBLY OF KOSOVO”

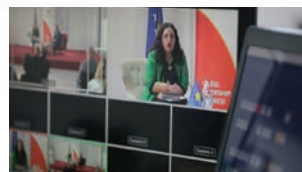

28 October 2020

The Speaker of the Assembly of Kosovo, Vjosa Osmani, today held a lecture on “Parliamentarianism and current challenges”, for AAB students where she spoke about important issues faced by the highest representative body and legislature of the Republic of Kosovo.

According to Osmani, in the 90s, the Assembly of Kosovo, which emerged from the elections of the parallel voting system, built by President Ibrahim Rugova, was not just a body where only ideas were discussed, as it happens today. The parliament, at that time, was a resistance to the occupiers, it was a resistance to Serbia; it was a resistance to a genocidal regime, said Osmani, while emphasizing that nowadays citizens have lost faith in the Assembly of Kosovo, for several reasons.

“For many years now, the Parliament of Kosovo has been considered only as a confirmation stamp for government decisions, many citizens have lost faith in it. Because they do not see it as a place where control takes place, where supervision takes place, a place which serves as a kind of filter or a controller that keeps the decisions of the government in check. So, this is one of the challenges that we have faced over the years and it is one of the issues mentioned in the vast majority of European Commission reports.” – said Osmani.

According to Osmani, a strong parliament should have budgetary independence, and that the Government cannot allocate the budget to the parliament, which according to her, is budgetary pressure.

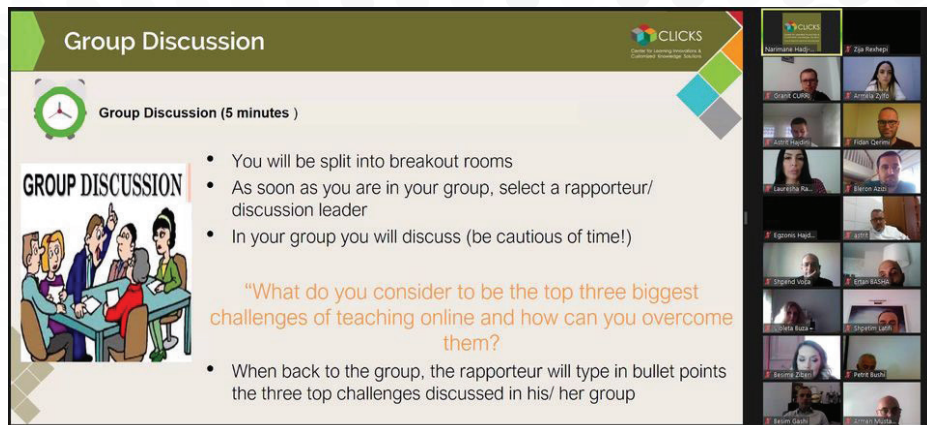

President Osmani also spoke about current political developments, emphasizing that the Kosovo-Serbia dialogue is another topic that is wasting the energy of Kosovo institutions.

Osmani sees the creation of the Association of Serb-majority municipalities as a dangerous decision for the country: “Regarding the Association of Serbian Municipalities, I think it is one of the most dangerous decisions taken by Kosovo institutions. An autonomy for Serbs in the North is just a warning of what’s to come in the subsequent partition. It’s just as dangerous as partition, only delayed a little.” – said the Speaker of the Assembly, Vjosa Osmani.
